To whom it may concern

Jean-Marcel Malliate of interMediate presented 2 seminars for the City of Sydney Law Society in February 2014 and March 2015 at Angel Place 123 Pitt Street, Sydney.

The first seminar on 20 March 2014 was titled "Me a workplace bully? How to spot one.". It was a multi-media presentation enlivened by video and role-play. It was an excellent survey of the social science and the psychological impact of bullying. It was well received. There were 125 attendees.

The second seminar on 19 February 2015 was titled "Human Behaviour and Social Issues and regulation 176. This was a seminar intended to fulfil the requirements for a compulsory OHS seminar. There was some requests by members beforehand that the seminar contained more law than social science. A co-presenter helped with the seminar being solicitor Bill Steenson' from WorkCover who also lectures in employment law.

The seminar was a good balance between legislative provisions and the underlying social science. There were 121 attendees.

Overall I would recommend the presenter as someone that thoroughly knows his topic and presents it in a lively and interesting manner.

Yours truly

Stephen Bell
